LUKE McLUKE SAYS

(Cincinnati Enquirer.)

The old-fashioned girl who used to know how to cook and sew now has a daughter who can play football and fix a carburetor.

Some girls are so afraid that you will imagine they are modest that or a $50 dog.

Any farmer will tell you that there ain't no such animals as gyastictus; they do nothing but brag about their modesty.

When a man tries to be polite to his wife she gets suspicious and knows he has been doing something AWFUL.

The people who are the most in need of advice are the lads who are always trying to give it away.

As soon as a girl discovers that a man is married she quits posing for him.

When ignorance is Bliss the Blissful One always tries to pose as a Wise Guy.

We all like to imagine that we are the busiest people in the world. But a dog fight or a fire always draw a crowd.

There wouldn't be so many marriages if the Young Men called on the girls early in the morning instead of late in the evening. The Special Scene works wonders.

You can save a lot of valuable time by admitting that the Whale swallowed Jonah or that Jonah swallowed the Whale, whichever way the other fellow wants it.

The old-fashioned girl who used to regard a Glass of Beer as Sinful and Riotous Living now has a daughter who puts two cases on top every second morning.

As a girl grows older she discovers that all the Villains do not wear silk hats and black mustaches.

A name can't kill a real boy. The prize ring is filled with Clarendons and there are lots of Algernons in the big leagues.

Some Sweet Things are so Pure Minded that they are Horrified at the Very Idea of a woman spending the night in the same house with her husband.

POTATO HILL PHILOSOPHY.

(Ed. Howe's Monthly.)

You need neither invent nor originate; imitate is good enough. It may be said for cold feet that they often carry timid men out of danger.

Peat powder with a small addition of coal has been successfully and economically used in locomotive firing in Sweden.

NURSE TO BE SENT TO PARIS BY TUBERCULAR COMMISSION

The visit of the Tuberculosis Exhibit car last fall stimulated no little amount of interest in Paris. Subsequently, Miss Lucy Simms, as spokesman for a group of interested people, corresponded with the Secretary of the State, Tuberculosis Commission relative to ways and means of conducting an intensive campaign in Bourbon county.

After consideration the Commission has offered to the people locally interested to send a visiting nurse for a period of two months, if interest justifies it, her salary to be paid by the Commission, and her living expenses to be paid from the proceeds of the sale of Christmas stamps in Paris.

For this work the Commission has detailed Miss Emma Hunt, of Frankfort. Miss Hunt is a nurse with seven years of hospital experience, and a most varied experience in other directions. Her first assignment with the Commission was in Mason county. There, in the course of about ten weeks she discovered more than twenty cases of tuberculosis, some of which in the incipient stages have been helped, so that the process of recovery has been well started.

As an incident in her work she discovered and secured the successful treatment of one case of trachoma; discovered two cases afflicted with intestinal parasites; discovered and secured treatment for several cases of other kinds of diseases; brought about a condemnation of one filthy dwelling, and the repair of another; secured the observation of "Clean-Up Day" for the city; brought about the beginning of medical inspection of all the school children of the county; and has so firmly established the local Health League that it has employed a visiting nurse to remain permanently.

This League has already committed itself to endeavor to secure hospital provision for the consumptives of Mason county at the earliest possible time.

Miss Hunt has been instructed to make a survey of existing conditions here to discover the prevalence of tuberculosis, and secure the interest of all the people possible, both physicians and laymen, in the proper care of these cases. If conditions are favorable for work Miss Hunt will remain two months.

Strange things happen. The other evening we were kept awake for an hour or so by two men arguing a certain question and for once the man with the loud voice was right.

THOS. KIDWELL CONVICTED ON MANSLAUGHTER CHARGE

Thomas Kidwell, charged with the murder of William Bell, a strikebreaker, was found guilty of manslaughter in the Fayette Circuit Court, Tuesday. The lightest punishment possible was recommended.

Kidwell, C. C. Ralston and William Rogers were jointly indicted for the murder of Bell.

Ralston was recently killed in Texas. The indictment against Rogers was dismissed.

Kidwell, Ralston and Rogers were among those who struck when the liverymen of the street car company went out last July. Bell was one of fifteen imported strikebreakers. It is alleged that while he was at work on a pole, Kidwell, Ralston and Rogers pulled him off, causing him to fall to the ground. His neck was broken, and he died several months later at his home in Chicago.
